Organization of the Manuscript
Divide the manuscript into clearly-defined and numbered sections as follows: Introduction, materials and methods, Results, Discussion, Conclusions and References. Subsections should be numbered 1.1 (then 1.1.1, 1.1.2,...), 1.2, etc. (the abstract is not included in section numbering). The following details are expected from each of the clearly-defined sections:

Abstract: A concise and factual abstract is required. The abstract should state briefly the purpose of the research, the principal results and major conclusions.

Introduction: State the objective of the work and provide an adequate background, avoiding a detailed literature survey or a summary of the results.

Materials and Methods: Provide sufficient details to allow the work to be reduced. Methods already published should be indicated by a reference; only relevant modifications should be described.

Results: Results should be clear and concise.

Discussion: This should explore the significance of the results of the work, not repeat them. A combined Results and Discussion section is often appropriate. Avoid extensive citations and discussion of published literature.

Conclusions: The main conclusions of the study may be presented in a short conclusions section, which may stand alone or form a subsection of a discussion or result and discussion section.

References: All references mentioned in the reference list should be cited in the text, and vice versa. Permission should be obtained for use of copyrighted materials from other sources (including the Web).

Figures and Tables: Figures and Tables should be presented after Reference list. Number figures consecutively in accordance with their appearance in the text. Ensure that each illustration has a caption. A caption should comprise a brief title and description of the illustration. Number tables consecutively in accordance with their appearance in the text. Place footnotes to tables below the table body and indicate them with superscript lowercase letters. Avoid vertical lines. Use tables sparingly and ensure that the data presented in tables do not duplicate results described elsewhere in the article. Participation is open to individuals, public and private sector organizations.
